Dear colleague

Treatment of coronary 3 vessel disease can be complex in certain cases and might need a different approach from the usual treatment modality. The hybrid approach, a combination of minimal invasive endoscopic CABG (endo CABG) and percutaneous coronary intervention (PCI), might be a valuable treatment option.

The departments of cardiothoracic surgery, cardiology, anesthesia and intensive care of the Jessa Hospital are pleased to invite you to their second international symposium titled 'The hybrid approach to coronary artery revascularization'.

Different insights from both a surgical and a cardiologic point of view will be discussed, reinforced by direct live transmission of hybrid PCI and surgery at the Jessa Hospital. We hope to show you a glimpse behind the scenes of our daily practice, where we bring together 'the best of both worlds'.

We look forward to welcoming you!
